Western Camping Adventure a Big Hit!

Over the weekend of June 4-6, Alliance members and their families from three Western states gathered for the Sacramento Local Unit's Western Camping Adventure held at a private location in Nevada. Members came from Sacramento, Carson City, Las Vegas, southern California and Idaho. Travel times for members ranged from as little as a half-hour up to a ten-hour drive. The weather was great other than some windy conditions.

The purpose of the event was not only to provide a fun weekend for members, but more importantly to build a greater sense of White community and create stronger bonds among members to Our Cause, as well as to one another. We credit and thank Brian W. for his organizing of this event.

The camp pavilion was decorated with Alliance banners and Life Rune flags to accentuate our home away from home. While most members and families pitched their tents, others camped out in their vehicles.

On Friday June 4, the majority of the attendees came into camp to get as early a start as possible for a fun-filled weekend. A big supper was prepared with plenty of chow to go around. Every member brought lots of food to share with their comrades. Afterwards, members whiled away the first evening relaxing around the firepit.

On Saturday the 5th, the main event day, the rest of the attendees arrived. After a hearty breakfast, most members went on a several hour group hike along a river trail while others either relaxed at camp or went on their own self-guided tours.

After the hike, lunch was prepared in preparation to the next major event of the day, a motor tour up a high mountain range to not only view a fantastic panorama, but to also get a chance to view herds of wild horses. Once again, most members went on the tour while others stayed in camp to relax and to keep an eye on our property.

Those who went up the mountain range were not to be disappointed, for as the caravan reached the summit we started to spot one or two horses here and there. Once at the top we discovered herds of these beautiful wild animals. We and they eyed each other curiously. The group watched the animals in silence, taking care to do as little as possible to disturb them.

It should be noted that Nevada is the last remaining state with any significant number of these magnificent animals. They seem to be mostly viewed either in the wide- and far-reaching stretches of wilderness of the desert, or high up in lofty mountain ranges.

While at the mountain summit, Jim Ring gave a short eulogy for a deceased member, Ken Hoskins, who passed away last year. The member loved the Nevada desert and it was thought fitting to remember him here at this wondrous place.

Once the tour group returned to camp, everyone gathered together to an enlightening and fun game created by two of our members Harry E. and Colleen D.

The game is a combination of Bingo and Jeopardy combined together. Players each had their own card to fill out like in Bingo and instead of numbers being called out, members would listen to questions from Colleen about the National Alliance and history and select the correct answers if they thought they were on their cards.

If the member filled a card out correctly, the member would yell out "Turner" as in The Turner Diaries instead of "Bingo." Harry and Colleen provided cash prizes in the form of money orders already made out in the name of the National Alliance. Winning members could use these either to put to their member pledges or to send as a general donation in their own names. In addition, there were also iron-on patches and a flag given away.

The game was played for about an hour, continuing until all the donated prizes had been given away. Everyone was ecstatic with the creativity of the new game. The questions had quite a range of difficulty providing a rewarding and educational time for everyone who played, which was almost the entire group.

After the game, a big supper was prepared. Following that, members relaxed around camp or played horseshoes until the evening fire was ready. The kids were constantly on the go the entire weekend frolicking the camp area and playing with remote control race cars, biking, exploring for animals, and fighting mock battles with improvised "swords and shields."

The evening bonfire was built and an Alliance meeting commenced. Unit Coordinator Jim Ring once again paid homage to our deceased comrade Ken Hoskins, dedicating the event as the "Ken Hoskins Memorial Campout" and indicating that his spirit is still with us, at the campfire meeting and always. It was Ken who discovered this beautiful camping spot originally and he attended the previous year's event.

Jim also read an address from an official with Greece's premier racial organization Golden Dawn concerning the significance of the historical role that Hitler played in the overall struggle for the survival of Aryan man today. He envisioned an Aryan world and his vision is still our "waking dream." The address stressed that only as the decades roll on will more and more of our people come to appreciate what this great man meant to our race. The message resonated with everyone present as all were already quite aware of the greatness of this man.

The address, originally meant for a Hellenic audience, was beautifully translated by an Alliance member fluent in the Greek language so that it could be appreciated by the members attending this event. Permission to share this address was given by the author from Golden Dawn with his warmest blessings to our National Alliance.

Everyone was moved by the Golden Dawn message and members asked if they could get a copy of the words for themselves.

This was followed by a reading by Mr. Ring from one of the more emotional sections of Hitler's great book; the part where he describes the suffering from the English gas attack in WWI and the realization that Germany had lost the war and the major part played in that by Jewish Bolsheviks.

The meeting concluded late into the evening with a round-the-campfire discussion of Alliance issues and good fellowship.

On Sunday the 6th, members awoke to another beautiful, bright morning and commenced a big, hearty breakfast.

Besides the camaraderie of the weekend, this day specifically exalted the power of networking that such events can provide in a very practical way.

Our Las Vegas members who were preparing to do a gun show in their city the weekend following discovered that personal schedules of members there had changed in that there might not be enough people to properly staff the display.

Attention was called to this problem and right then and there Sunday morning, members of the Sacramento Local Unit pledged their assistance to help the Las Vegas comrades have their display properly staffed.

The Spirit of the event transcended the long distance involved and Sacramento comrades were willing to make the drive to Las Vegas just as the Las Vegas comrades graced us with their presence for the camp out.

Everyone who was at last year's camping adventure agreed that this one exceeded the previous in every way; more fellowship, more spirit, more members, more activities, and more commitment to work harder for the central purpose of our lives: Our Cause.

2nd Western Camping Adventure... Final Call

This notice serves as the final announcement for the Sacramento Local Unit sponsored 2nd Western Camping Adventure for this year, this time in the High Sierra Nevada Mountains of California.

The event will be held over the weekend of July 30 - August 1 at a private alpine location. Be prepared for more enjoyment and camaraderie with your National Alliance comrades. For any member who missed coming to the last camping event, this is your opportunity to seize. For those who attended the Nevada campout, this will be an encore with a different setting.

Members in the West that would like to attend need to contact Jim Ring directly or call the Sacramento Unit's telephone message service at 530-757-3818.

From reading the story on the previous event in this issue of the Bulletin, you can see what you missed out on if you could have but didn't come. If you live in the far Western states, make the trip and enjoy a memorable weekend with comrades and friends.

Las Vegas Gun Show

Members of the Las Vegas area organized a 24-foot National Vanguard Books display at the local gun show of June 12-13. A special thanks goes to Jim Ring and a member from northern Nevada who drove down to assist with this first Vegas show.

The impressive display included many books that are currently out of stock at the National Office, as well as many titles that are likely additions to the book catalog. The variety of books and materials at the tables generated good interest and favorable comments. We were even visited by the chairman of an area White nationalist group (and former National Alliance member), who congratulated us on being able to put on such a display at the show, and lamented that his own group doesn't do anything.

We were very surprised to meet so many people who were already very knowledgeable and supportive of our positions, particularly in regard to the Jews. A few of the people had even read The Turner Diaries or were already familiar with the National Alliance.

The event went very smoothly, with the exception of one incident on Sunday afternoon. An apparently very confused gun-toting "patriot" grew irate after browsing our literature. He became loud and belligerent, and of all things, accused us of being communists. He then scurried around, complaining to the other vendors and the management of the show, in an effort to have us thrown out. It caused a flurry of interest in our display, as the other vendors and members of the management came by to see what all the fuss was about. Nothing came of it, however, as apparently no one found anything too objectionable, and certainly not anything communist. We continued to sell books and give out literature, and finished the show without any problems.

It was felt that the show was a success in presenting the National Alliance in a positive and professional manner to the public, and in reaching a number of good individual prospects. Gun shows, and perhaps large ethnic European cultural festivals, are probably the best venue for presenting our message to a selected audience containing a large number of receptive people. You are not likely to find many people who are initially in agreement with or who have a thorough understanding of every position or belief of the National Alliance. However, you will meet a number of people who at least share some of our beliefs and concerns, and who have the potential for being educated and led to arrive at our worldview. It would be a worthwhile effort for any Local Unit or group of members, which has the finances and manpower, to undertake such a project.

Jim Ring Speaks to Young People

Sacramento Unit Coordinator Jim Ring was invited to speak to a meeting of racially conscious young people in Sacramento on June 19.

The meeting was organized by an area racial activist who wanted to introduce a dozen or so young people to someone who has been working for his race for an extensive period of time since youth, and works for the interests of the race in a mature and responsible manner. Jim was the candidate of choice and was invited to speak and to also introduce the National Alliance to the gathering. The attendees, an eclectic group of young people, ranged in age from their early twenties to early thirties.

The group could be categorized into two specific types.

The larger of the two groups were more worthwhile elements of the skinhead sub-culture. These people had dropped away from the usual skinhead groups that in California are often populated with those who are too shy of self-discipline to be of any use.

These skinheads were of a more responsible, mature variety and were sincere in wanting to do something to help the cause of racial survival.

The other, smaller group, were university students from the San Francisco Bay Area. They were especially attentive and curious, and were previously unaware of the National Alliance. They had become disenchanted working with a supposedly pro-White group in their area. They came to the meeting to discover what we were all about.

Attendees came not only from the local Sacramento area, but also from the San Francisco Bay Area as previously mentioned and as far north as Redding, CA.

In his address, Jim talked of his own experiences as a young activist and evolution into a mature one. He advised everyone to work to his potential, getting as much education as possible and being successful in whatever endeavor they chose. The better they were able to achieve their personal goals; the better would be their influence on others around them.

He warned the young activist to resist any allure to "Hollywood Nazism," but instead to study the beauty of the philosophy of National Socialism and its author and realize the true spirit of the idea.

He asked the young folk to "dream with open eyes" and stay positive in an era that is dominated by darkness, working for a world of "light and Life." And instead of constant complaint or blindly lashing out over one outrage or another against our race, which is ever constant, to always instead focus on working constructively to building our new world; our New Order.

He also cautioned the young people to never listen to anyone who advocates illegal activity in the nonsense popularly known as "lone wolf" tactics. Keep away from these people. Shun them. They are either gung-ho loudmouths, crazy people, or just as likely, government agents looking for someone to entrap.

A racial activist does no one any good being locked away in one of the government's gulags over some worthless act of desperation that won't diminish the System's power not even a single iota. The result will actually be a further empowerment of our enemies with new grist for their propaganda mills.

Jim concluded his talk discussing the National Alliance and why he became a member and is devoting his life to Our Cause.

After a break and light refreshments, Jim presented the young folk some suggested reading ideas for their further enlightenment. He had brought to the meeting a number of books to show. Many of the titles are available from National Vanguard Books and he invited everyone to visit our various Web sites.

Jim did sell a couple of books on the spot. One, a copy of Lightning and the Sun by Savitri Devi to an energetic activist and the other, Gun Control in Germany by Dr. William Pierce went to a university student.

One of the university students later related to the meeting's host that he had visited our Web sites and found them to be a treasure trove.

Every person attending each received from Jim complimentary copies of the latest issue of National Vanguard magazine as well as "Who Rules America?" and "What is the National Alliance?" pamphlets. Also, each person was given an America is a Changing Country DVD featuring our founder Dr. Pierce.

It is expected we'll be hearing more from some of these people, especially the university students, as they specifically asked for Jim's contact information.

Little Things Can Mean a Lot!

by Jim Ring

June has been a very, very busy month for me. Each weekend has been filled with Alliance activity. The first weekend we had our Western Camping Adventure; the next I travelled to Las Vegas to help comrades there with their gun show activity. After that, I spoke to a meeting of racially conscious young Whites in Sacramento on a recruiting mission, and the last weekend was our regular monthly Alliance meeting.

In between those events, I'm on the computer writing articles like this one, researching news stories for our Alliance news Web site and on the phone talking with members in relation to promoting Our Cause.

And there's something else I do regularly and such a little thing that I would have even neglected to mention it to you had it not been for a fellow member who noticed me and thought it significant. Because of this member's observation, this story is being conveyed to you now.

The member, upon observing me, was struck by the juxtaposition of a seemingly insignificant action versus its potential if multiplied many times over. He wondered aloud if other members were doing it as he admitted that it has never even crossed his mind. It's such a simple thing that even those who are not activity-oriented can do it easily. In the member's opinion there isn't a valid excuse for an Alliance member not to participate. And thus he suggested I share it with you here.

And the simple thing is this. Every time I stop for gasoline, I take one of our Alliance business cards and place it somewhere on the pump so the next patron will discover it. I usually place the cards inside the slot where the credit card would go, just so it sticks out prominently. I place it so the front of the card faces the person using the pump. (If it's a windy day, I place it further in as not to blow away.)

I do this all the time at home every week, sometimes twice, and while travelling away from home as well; every stop for gas; without fail.

You might say it's kind of my way of doing a literature distribution on a continuing basis. It's just so easy to do I don't even think about.

It's such an inexpensive activity. A pack of 100 Alliance business cards is only $5 postpaid. Heck, get at least two packs or more so you don't run out.

Now you may say that on average most people are filling up their cars just once a week and maybe some twice. At that, there's only a minimum of 52 to 75 cards per year being distributed in this manner by any one member.

But think of it this way; if all members were doing this there would be tens of thousands of these cards being distributed each year all over the country just by filling up at the pump.

That doesn't include all the other locations that an enterprising member can place these little cards with the big message.

It's so easy, it's so "low key." Really, it's almost effortless! Unlike fliers, they fit into the palm of your hand.

And you never even have to carry them on your person if you don't want to. Just keep a supply of them in the console or dash box in your car and they're always there.

With every member joining in this effort and tens of thousands of the little cards reaching people everywhere with almost NO effort, what excuse could there be for not helping out with this?

Yes, it's not much just when I do it, but if you will all help me it would make a huge difference in getting the little card with the big message out to the general public.

Each card you place is a little resistance. The more of us placing cards, the more the resistance. The more the resistance, even in small ways, the sooner the realization of our New Order; the White nation state of the future!

LEAD FROM THE FRONT

Commentary by Chairman Gliebe

Since its founding by Dr. Pierce in the 1970s, the Alliance has striven to be the leading organization in the White Racialist Cause here in the Western Hemisphere. More or less, we have been successful in this regard, having built and maintained a professional organization that has a lot of media weapons at its disposal for disseminating our message. We also have a high quality membership that can be counted on to "deliver" when the need arises.

Well, here is something we need to deliver on: the recruitment and cultivation of potential leaders within the organization. It takes a lot of leadership at many different levels to make the Alliance run smoothly and to keep us as the leading racialist group in North America. And at this time, we are in need of dedicated regional and local leaders in order to move our organization forward. These leaders must be well rounded and have the personality and skills to deal effectively with the many different types of members (and non-members) within a given local area. They must also be true activists and self-starters: people who take an idea and don't hesitate to shape it into something concrete and tangible that will get our message of White hope out to a larger audience.

Jim Ring, the leader of our Sacramento Local Unit, is the perfect example of an effective leader. He possesses great leadership attributes: a thorough understanding of our ideology; effective communication skills, including a commanding presence; experience and patience in dealing with a wide variety of personalities; complete dedication to Our Cause; and the will to sacrifice for the greater good of Our Cause. Furthermore, Jim isn't content to be an "armchair activist." He has the Sacramento Local Unit constantly on the go, attending gun shows, holding demonstrations, distributing literature, and so on. We need more Jim Rings in other positions of leadership within our organization.

Unfortunately, leaders are – for the most part – born and not made. The combination of skills required of a good leader are, like intelligence, largely inherent. And like intelligence, leadership skills can be honed and improved somewhat, but that doesn't discredit the basic truth.

But the most important attribute of a good leader is that the person has a goal and will stop at nothing to achieve that goal. If you have that attribute, you are potentially leader material. Contact me, and let's talk about how you can use your leadership skills to make an active contribution to the Alliance.
